Happy New Year!

Where's that blanket of snow? The shortest day of the year is behind us and now we can look forward to the later sunsets and all the events that typically occur in the winter (except maybe the ice and snow-related recreation.) Many things lie ahead and we hope that we can keep them fresh in your mind so that you don't miss an opportunity that benefits you.

MASLA has over 300 members and this newsletter aims to reach all of them plus people in allied professions, local governments, and anyone else interested enough to subscribe. Membership dues and sponsorships have provided the bulk of the resources necessary to get this far and soon enough MASLA will be rolling out a new sponsorship program directed to offer sponsorship packages with greater value through more recognition and exposure to our growing audience. MASLA is continuing to grow and this involves change. Stay up to date with MASLA.org, it's your benefit and it has something to offer.

Best wishes,
Chris Ochs
MASLA Director of Communications

"Everything's Connected, Everything's Changing, So Pay Attention" is a saying that Dept. Head of Landscape Architecture at the College of Design (formerly CALA), John Koepke, used to say to many of his students.

This is true for MASLA's website and its content. Some items of interest include:
